INTRODUCING PURCHASE ORDERS
Advantages of a Purchase Order

A purchase order is a particularly useful document for church councils seeking to engage contractor services for maintenance or minor building work. The Responsible Body Purchase Order (RBPO) is a short form legally binding contract that has been developed to enable church councils to confidently manage building contractor administration. The Responsible Body Purchase Order details the services and or goods that the church council seeks to receive for an agreed price and the terms of the agreement.

Some of the benefits to using the Responsible Body Purchase Order include:

- A consistent method of entering into purchasing agreements across the Uniting Church in Australia Victoria and Tasmania, whereby terms and conditions have been prepared by UCA legal services in accord with best practice.
- Church councils can achieve a fair and equitable agreement with building contractors with the Responsible Body Purchase Order recording the terms and conditions of the agreed works. The RBPO gives greater protection to church councils in managing budgets, timing and risk when compared to the absence of a formal arrangement or supplier prepared agreements.
- The building contractor is formally advised through the Responsible Body Purchase Order as to the UCA policy of Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) inductions, where all workers and subcontractors are required to complete an online induction before commencing the work along with the building contractor’s obligations to OHS legislation to ensure control measures are in place to reduce risk of harm to workers and all persons in the vicinity of the building work.

- The Responsible Body Purchase Order provides a clear statement as to the expected outcomes of quality, quantity and consumer care in the delivery of the maintenance or building work.

There are two forms of the Responsible Body Purchase Order:

- General Maintenance and Building Work
- Fencing

Approvals Process
